Debate in Parliament-The Derby Ministry The debate on the cousure motion of Mr. Cardwell in regard to India affairs was resumed on the 17th uit, and was spirited. Mr. Rocback, on behalf of the extreme radicals, supported Lord Derby, and denounced the syrtem of secret diplomacy and the intermeddling policy of Lord Palmerston. It was thought that the division would not be had before the 24th of May, and that Lord Derby would then be sustained. A dissolution of Parliament was spoken of in case of an adverse vote to the Cablert of war, causing insurrection to spread from a majority of thousands in October.

one end of Lords to the other.

The London Star of May 18th announces that a meeting of Lord Derby's supporters had been held, at which Lord D. declared his intention to advise Her Majesty to dissolve Parliament in case of their known wishes, and in subversion of the Barty in case of his being beaten. At the clubs opinion was divided as to who would be called to succeed the Derby Ministry in case of their resignation. The Earl of Granville and Lord John Russell were named as prominent for the succession, though the prevailing opinion was that Lord Derby will not dare to risk a dissolution. The N. Y. Herald supposes the news of the British out-Y. Heraid supposes the news of the British out- and of the imperative necessity for its total cal antagonists. The first feeling of the British people, on hearing of these outrages and of the antural indignation which they have aroused there, will be intense anger against the government which has so recklessly endangered the peace of the world. Whatever decision may be arrived at upon second thoughts, the first impression will be fearfully hostile to the government which issued the orders for the search of American vessels. If, therefore, Lord Derby has not been everthrown by a vote of the House of Commons, the news will probably secure him a majority; if he has been defeated, and has, as we see it intimated he probably succeed in causing the return of an intensely anti-Palmer-ston House.

The hoop was worn as high as the hips, and below it depended a train, often five or six yards long, that was carried by waiting maids or boys. The old gentleman recollects seeing Mrs. Robert Morris walk along Broadway, N.
